TOTAL Oil: pull out of Burma now!

French oil giant TOTAL Oil is the fourth largest oil company in the world and one of the biggest foreign investors in Burma. It is in a joint venture with Burma's dictatorship in the Yadana gas project in southern Burma. The gas project earns the regime hundreds of millions of dollars every year. Aung San Suu Kyi, Burma's democracy leader, has said that "TOTAL is the biggest supporter of the military regime in Burma."

Burma is ruled by one of the world's most brutal military dictatorships, responsible for:

- Systematic and widespread use of forced labour.
- Rape as a weapon of war against ethnic women and children.
- At least 1,300 political prisoners, many of whom are routinely tortured.
- More child soldiers than any other country in the world.
- Nearly half the government budget spent on the military and just 19p per person per year on health.

Investment in Burma has helped the regime more than double the size of its army. This army has been responsible for horrific human rights abuses along the route of the TOTAL pipeline, including forced labour, forced portering, torture and rape. In addition, tougher European Union sanctions against Burma have been blocked by the French government because it wants to protect TOTAL's interests in Burma.

Take action now. Sign and send the postcard overleaf today and ask TOTAL Oil to pull out of Burma now!

To Total Oil

I am very concerned that Total Oil is in a joint business venture with Burma's brutal military dictatorship. By working so closely with the dictatorship you are funding a regime that imprisons and tortures political opponents, has been condemned by the United Nations for its widespread use of forced labour and that uses rape as a weapon of war in its persecution of ethnic minorities.

Burma's democracy leaders have asked companies not to invest in Burma. I urge you to end your business partnership with Burma's military dictatorship and pull out of Burma now!

Thank you and I look forward to hearing from you.
